

ZEPELINS MAKE THREE SUCCESSFUL RAIDS UPON EASTERN COAST OF ENGLAND

Attack of Friday Night Was Followed by Others on Saturday and Sunday Nights—Bombs Dropped on Coast of Scotland as Well as East Coast of England—Some Compensation For Losses is Found in Capture of One Zeppelin and Her Crew.

LONDON, April 3.—For three successive nights the east coast of England has been attacked by Zeppelin raiders. According to a war office statement issued early this morning, Zeppelins dropped bombs on various places in the north and the north and south-eastern coasts of England, but the war office says no details are available.

With the exception of the big raid of January 31, when the casualties aggregated sixty-seven persons killed and 117 injured, the Zeppelin raids of Friday and Saturday nights caused greater loss of life than any previous aerial attack this year. The total casualties for two nights, according to an official report, were 69 persons killed and 166 wounded.

As some compensation for this sacrifice of life, however, the British public finds satisfaction in practical proof afforded of a great improvement in the defensive methods of dealing with aerial incursions. For the first time since the inception of this method of warfare on the British coast, not only has one raiding Zeppelin been brought down, and its crew taken prisoners, but the official report recounts an exciting aerial combat between a Zeppelin and a British aircraft, Lieut. Brandon, who, mounting to a height of 10,000 feet, got over the raider, and dropped several bombs on it with effect.

It is still unknown whether the Zeppelin in this raid was the L-15, which was brought down on Saturday night, or another craft which it is believed to have been. The machine gun, petrol tank, and other parts.

Native of New Zealand.
Aired Brandon, the British pilot, is a native of New Zealand. He is thirty years of age, and has been in the flying corps but only a few months.

There has been constant agitation in the newspapers for a certain number of years to ascend and attack Zeppelins, and that this has now been accomplished is a great achievement in the sense of the war. It is a great achievement in the sense of the war. It is a great achievement in the sense of the war. It is a great achievement in the sense of the war.

Injured Machine Seen.
In connection with Lieut. Brandon's report from Copenhagen that a Zeppelin had been brought down, it was stated that the machine was seen at a distance of about 100 miles from the coast.

Stratford night's raid was much less serious than that of January 31, only the most serious details of the attack, however, the Zeppelin was brought down. According to the report, only one of the two Zeppelins was brought down.

Cost Exorbitant.
LONDON, April 2.—It is stated that a number of British Zeppelins have been destroyed in the Zeppelin raids. This is the first mention of the cost of these bombs in air raids over England.

A correspondent who visited a number of the Zeppelin bases in the north of France, and who saw the Zeppelins in the act of being launched, has written a book on the subject. He has written a book on the subject. He has written a book on the subject.

THE DAILY POEM

JOAN THE MAID

The Lord Giveth, and the Lord taketh away: He hath made us as a nation, and he will make us as a nation again.

St. Michael stood, a star in Heaven, When the stars were all at sea.

He saw a little candle burn, That gave the stars much mirth.

There Joan was named, and kept her sheep, One night on a daylight dawn.

She saw upon the rookwood wall A sunbeam at her side.

Teas Michael's lamp: "With foot of maid, He said, 'they break the waxen shield!'"

And from the shadow on the wall, He wove for her a shield.

And in the ruins at Florio, He bade her look for Michael's sword.

Five Plectrums crossed on the shield— To save France for the Lord.

Some men believe, and some will doubt, And some will fall away:

But Joan believed, with blood and tears, Until her martyr's day.

At Rouen, in the market place, They show the stones of shame.

Where for the piteous warrior maid, Was lit the witch's flame.

Now, men of France, and Englishmen— By that remorseful death,

You brought on her, and on the wind, And on the dust beneath:

Call on the dust that once was Joan, And bid her heart be there.

The sheepshead still beneath the mail, A tale around her hair.

Great news, if you that wrought should save, The land, in which she died:

Call now on her white warhorse, The Maid may with you ride.

The time that she loved their land, To death like winds and stars.

Still all the dust, and cannot rest, Joins and joins and joins.

At the Highlands

About one hundred and fifty people—teachers of the city schools—high public and technical—together with members of the department of education, were the guests of Mr. Hoover, principal of the Highlands public school, and the staff on Friday night.

Mr. W. C. Carter, superintendent of schools, gave an address on the importance of the school garden in the education of the child.

The plan of the work was outlined. The fact that in Calgary and many other cities of the world had been cultivated by the school children, with marked success, was recalled.

It was suggested that parents might buy these garden products from the children in some cases, others where that were not possible, parents might have them in any case. What was thus restricted could be given to the Welfare League and placed in storage in case of need.

Last year the Highlands school had had a very good garden. Should all the schools take up the project this year it was hinted that they do in fact, root vegetables, potatoes, pumpkins, turnips, cabbages, etc.

Mr. Miller, who spoke briefly, felt that what had been a successful venture in rural districts could be equally so in the city.

Votes of thanks were tendered both speakers. In the absence of the Hon. J. B. Boyle, minister of education, who attended a district football banquet on Friday night at Nanaimo, Mr. D. S. McKee, deputy minister, was present.

The letter of the Highlands Improvement Club dispensed hospitality, followed by a delectably impromptu dance. The band of the 62nd Overseas Battalion played rousing selections throughout the evening.

Boy and Girl Riders To Be Conspicuous At the Horse Show

Ponies Will Be Entered Next Saturday, Which Will Be Known as Children's Day.

The children from the shelter, the day nursery, the Social Service home, will be guests of the Exhibition Association at the Horse Show, Saturday, April 3rd, "Children's Day," when the ponies will be judged and special attention paid to entertain the children of little people who invade the pavilion on that eventful day and enjoy the show more than anybody.

This year they will find new interest in the competitions, for there are new entries, and many new and little riders and their ponies, bay and black, grey and spotted. And those ponies are getting such grooming these days that their skins are almost worn thin.

And the oats? Why one pony was under the impression it was Christmas time, he had such extra help-out. The pony carriage too, are being cleaned and repaired and harnesses
